IRWINTON, Ga., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Adjutant General Homer C. Parker, candidate for comptroller general, carried Wilkinson county in Wednesday's primary, it was officially announced tonight by the democratic executive committee of this county after a special meeting of that body to consider the controversy that has arisen. The committee reported after its investigation that there was no irregularity in the primary election in Wilkinson county. While on the face of the returns it was indicated that B. M. Bullard had carried the county with a total of 402 votes, it was determined that there had been an error in totaling the vote given to Adjutant General Parker, which, when corrected, gave him a total of 574 votes, enough to carry the county.

No Padding of Figures.

There was no padding of figures, the committee showed. The total vote for United States senator and for the gubernatorial candidates was above 1,500. More persons voted in the senatorial and gubernatorial contests than in the other contests, the total vote for comptroller general being 1,305.

All of the members of the executive committee except one attended today's meeting, it was announced, it being impossible to locate that man. At the conclusion of the meeting an official report was made of the committee's findings and this was mailed to Mrs. Bessie Anderson, secretary of the state democratic executive committee, Atlanta.

Letter With Report.

The letter accompanying the report stated:

I herewith enclose a certificate signed by the members of the executive committee of Wilkinson county correcting an error in the vote of this county in the race for comptroller general by padding on the consolidated returns from this county now on file in your office.

This certificate is intended as an official correction of the former returns, and you will please attach same to the said returns, for the purpose of showing the true and correct vote of this county in said election.

This letter was signed by H. Price, Jr., chairman of the executive committee of Wilkinson county.

Committee's Certificate.

The certificate of the democratic executive committee was as follows:

The democratic executive committee of the county of Wilkinson, Georgia, having this day met at the courthouse in Irwinton pursuant to the call of H. Price, Jr., chairman of our committee, and having made a careful inquiry and investigation of an alleged error in totaling the votes cast in said county in the race for comptroller general in the

La Follette's Widow Steers
GLORY OF POLITICAL CONQUETS GIVEN TO MOTHER
Her Second Son to Triumph

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The leading character of the state's greatest political family today saw new achievements inscribed on the roll of the La Follettes of Wisconsin.

She is Belle Case La Follette, widow of Senator Robert M. La Follette; mother of Robert M., Jr., senator from Wisconsin, and Philip F. La Follette who yesterday won the republican nomination for governor.

Cast by choice in a minor role, Mrs. La Follette has steered another son to victory at the polls without once coming openly into the field of action during the long and strenuous campaign of Governor Walter J. Kohler. Today she has seen Philip named to the post his father held for two years. She already has witnessed husband and son as United States senators.

Preferring to always have the male members of the family serve in public office, Mrs. La Follette has remained in the background and has constituted the staff of the progressive movement. Her husband, the acknowledged founder, always referred to her as "the counsellor" and freely admitted his wife's faith and foresight enabled him to promulgate "progressive" policies and achieve a place in public life.

She met the late senator when both were students at the University of Wisconsin in the eighties, and was graduated with him from the law school—the first woman to complete the legal course at the state university. She battled for him as he emerged from the law school, elected senator, successively, district attorney, congressman, governor, United States senator and finally aided his unsuccessful candidacy for the presidency as an independent in 1924—a campaign of rigors which it is believed by his friends hastened his death the following year. After the senator's death Mrs. La Follette was urged to run for his unexpired term but she preferred to see her eldest son, Robert, Jr., win the seat. She told him, "Son, Robert M. La Follette, was married to his secretary, Miss Rachel Wilson Young, of Washington. The wedding had been delayed until the campaign ended.

gins Construction of Desert Project.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, today formally inaugurated work on the $165,000,000 Boulder dam, and announced the Colorado river project would be known as the Hoover dam in honor of the president.

Robert M. La Follette, the Wisconsin senator, was married to his secretary in a quiet ceremony at Madison.

Friends brought to Philip, as he made ready to be best man for his big brother, the news of his sweeping triumph over Governor Walter J. Kohler, the candidate of regular Republicans in the race.

Brother Bob, sometimes called the secretary's most eligible bachelor, surprised every inmate friend of his young wife to Miss Rachel Wilson Young, of Washington. It had been rumored he was to wed, but not until months from now.

As large in significance as any other of this week's primaries is the La Follette brothers' victory in the resounding of the campaign, it is believed that the odds were strongly against him, and in favor of the regular republican candidate. Considering that Philip La Follette's brother, Robert, Jr., is already United States senator from Wisconsin, this week's event must be interpreted as having a definite meaning.

The meaning is wider than the boundaries of Wisconsin. Its significance seems to be that the type of sentiment associated with the name La Follette is vital in the northwest today as it was in the 30 years it has lasted.

Does Not Stand Alone.

The La Follette victory this week does not by any means stand alone. It is a sign having meaning over fully a sixth of the country. In state after state, from Wisconsin westward to the Rocky mountains, victories have been this summer by candidates of the "progressive" or La Follette type. If we conceive of all senators as belonging in three classifications, democratic, republican and progressive republican, it is the latter group that has been most uniformly successful in winning renominations. The number of progressive republicans in the senate is fifteen. Of these fifteen, five came up in this summer's primary for renomination. Every one of the five won. William E. Borah won in Idaho practically without opposition. George W. Norris was re-elected in Nebraska against his old friend in the regular republicans who were able to make against him.

Schall won in Minnesota, Pine in Oklahoma, McMaster in South Dakota. If we regard Couzens, of Michigan, as being on the border-line between progressive and regular republicans, his victory constitutes a sixth. The progressive republicans in the Senate are now thirteen.

Police said young Wardle was the writer of the notes. The youth wrote them, he said, to attract attention to himself in hope of becoming a movie star.

"How It Began," by means of daily cartoons, tells the origins of all sorts of superstitions, customs and sayings. It meets the great modern urge for information and it creates sustained excitement by the dramatic force of its presentation.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 17.—(AP)—

Down with the shapeless, crumpling

sails of his own Shamrock V tumbled

the dream castle of Sir Thomas Lipton

today, a castle built in the air

to house that battered old silver jug known as the America's Cup.

Almost home-stricken, the 80-year old knight of the sea, commander of sports and simplest of men, started from the deck of his majestic steam

yacht Erin and out across a sparkling expanses of white-capped water at his

green bodied sloop—a few seconds ago

a surprisingly powerful contender,

down, tossing, beaten unfortunate,

how manly andрапidly he was away into the distance, her sail

belying whitely, sped the tilting Ent erprise, away to her third straight victory of the series.

Away with that tall narrow specie raced whatever hope doughty old Sir Tom had been able to salvage for himself after the first race of his

of pride, the fifth and final chal lenger of the green Shamrock line.

He turned to the group beside him

on the deck.

"What a pity that this had to happen," he said, "but we turned away."

"What a pity when the weather is able to us and we seemed at last to have a fine chance of winning. We were well up, too, when the rope broke."

"Well," he sighed, "no one man in England can build a million dollar

yacht alone. His team will be syndicated again."

Sir Thomas knows now that he cannot beat the Enterprise with the boat he has. In fact it was said un officially aboard the Erin that Charles

Nicholson, designer of the Sham rock, the green baron, was very worried before the race this morning.

At any rate, Sir Thomas now is anxious to get the damage fixed, fill

the final race, and then depart for home, beaten for the last time for the prize he set his heart on over 30 years ago.

Sir Thomas asked British yachts men, some of them bitter at the sight of the Enterprise sailing away alone,

if the damage was serious and was assured that it could be repaired in an hour's time. His optimism was gone and he appeared to want only to get the series over with and sail

back to England with his disappoint ment.

Secretary Stimson, in announcing that this speedy recognition was ac tuated largely by the "present eco nomic situation," said the action re presented a new policy.

A study of Latin American relations disclosed,

however, that not since 1822 has any such blanket recognition been ac corded. At that time five Latin American governments were recog nized by act of congress.

"I have deemed it wise to act promptly in this matter," Secretary

Stimson said, "in order that in the present economic situation our delay

may not embarrass the people of those three friendly countries in re

establishing their normal intercourse

with the rest of the world."

Recognition of the new Argentine regime came just ten days after revolu

tional forces under General Jose

Francisco Uriburu deposed the go vernment of Hipolito Irigoyen, which had been overthrown in 1930.

Secretary Stimson, in re questing the Argentine government to re-establish its friendly relations with

Argentina, had directed Ambassador

Robert Woods Bliss, in Buenos Aires,

to inform the Argentine government to re-establish its friendly relations with Argentina.

In time to notify formally the Argen tine and Peruvian governments at that time simultaneously, Edward

Felix, new American minister to Bo livia.

Despite the newness of all three governments, however, Secretary Stimson affirmed the confidence of United States officials in their stability.

lia, has been directed to present his letters of credence and thereafter continue normal relations.

Recognition of Argentina has been predicted freely by observers for several days, but officials had adopted a definite attitude of silence in answer to all questions concerning such a move.

Some observers had predicted a race for recognition between Great Britain and the United States because of the gigantic trade interests involved, and when reports were published yesterday that both Great Britain and Germany, as well as Chile, had recognized Argentina, the tension increased. The announcement of recognition was made by Stimson at a regular daily press conference.

Secretary Stimson explained at length his statement that the recognition of these new revolutionary governments did not represent any change in United States policy. He quoted from former Secretary of State Hughes to show the policy of non-recognition of revolutionary governments, and said that the United States, like the other American countries, which had drawn up a treaty pledging such a course as applied to each other, and to which the United States assented.

PARKER HOLDS FIRM IN NOMINATION TILT.

Wednesday saw the nomination for comptroller general still undecided, with both Comptroller General W. B. Harrison and Adjutant General Homer C. Parker claiming victory.

In the consolidated returns of said primary election, signed by H. Price, Jr., chairman of our committee, one copy of which was forwarded to the secretary of the state executive committee and one copy filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of said county, the result of said election for comptroller general was erroneously declared as follows:

"For comptroller general:

"B. M. Bullard, 402 votes.

"Edgar T. Gentry, 40 votes.

"W. B. Harrison, 289 votes.

"Homer C. Parker, 274 votes.

Contest Necessary.

The only legal step that can clarify the situation, according to Parker, will be to call for a recount of votes in that county. Parker contends that through mistake in addition he was credited with 274 votes when he got 574.

Rules of the democratic committee in which he declared he wanted only "what I am entitled to."

Parker bases his claim on the nomination and disclosure of an error in the returns from Wilkinson county, which would give it its county unit-votes to him instead of to B. M. Bullard as first reported.

onto something to keep from sliding down to leeward.

The course was west southwest, a 15-mile beat toward the Block Island shore and a run back—a run back if the wind did not haul in the meantime.

The two boats ranged back and forth behind the starting line. Both were well to leeward when the warning gun was fired. Both headed back with the Shamrock to windward and close to the line, so close that the Enterprise could not get by the line and had to turn to windward.

The Shamrock tacked first, the Enterprise tacked across with her, and the pair were off on their long leg with the white boat in the green one's lee.

It looked so fast that it was evident that if she were actually going to windward she would cross her bows and stand across the line in the windward berth.

The Shamrock tacked first, the Enterprise tacked across with her, and the pair were off on their long leg with the white boat in the green one's lee.

It looked so fast that it was evident that if she were actually going to windward she would cross her bows and stand across the line in the windward berth.

The Shamrock was in tough luck today when she carried away her haliards, and tonight a lot of old ladies in the hotel lobbies are asking if it is legal to win a race that way.

It is not only legal but it is ethical.

It is fair and just. It was sir Thomas Lipton who protested to the New York Yacht Club that it was not fair that he should have to build a boat strong enough to cross the ocean and then have to race her against a boat no more heavily built than it need be to go out past Sandy Hook a few miles. As a result of Sir Thomas' complaints, and just complaints they are the defending boat this year had to be built to meet Lloyd's requirements. Both these racing yachts can stand quite a laming in a sea way. That is, their hulls can, but not their standing or running gear.

They are both equipped with as light gear as boats may have and put up well past the harbor mouth.

The Shamrock's gear is fragile as our boat's. Possibly more fragile.

A boat which puts to sea or enters a race with light gear, meaning to win some advantage because of that extra lightness, has no kick coming if she loses a race because of the extra lightness.

Two years ago, this Shamrock's elder sister, the fourth of the line, took a race from the Resolute when that boat carried away her main haliards.

The difference between the two cases was that the Resolute was leading by a mile at the time when only a few miles to go, whereas the Shamrock was second and would probably have lost anyway.

Accidents are not allowed to save a race that seems won, nor one that is lost, not in the yachting world.

Everybody here is sorry for Sir Thomas. We are all rooting for him to win at least one race, but how he is going to do it we cannot figure out.

The Enterprise looks to be the better boat under any conditions.

While class work will not begin until Friday, the convocation Wednesday inaugurated campus activities and served to launch the faculty and student body upon the program for the year. Registration has been in progress since Monday, and a freshman class of 150 has begun to familiarize itself with the various courses of studies. Economics, socialized, as it were, in the Agnes Scott atmosphere.

Dr. J. R. McCain, president of the college, presided at Wednesday's exercises, introducing Dr. Theodore H. Jack, vice president of Emory University, who delivered an address on the collateral values and opportunities of college education, with particular reference to the advantages of Agnes Scott.

J. K. Orr, chairman of the board of trustees, welcomed the student body on behalf of the board, and Miss Llewellyn Wilburn spoke in similar vein for the members of the faculty. Mr. A. J. Truckers Prepared For Parking Fight

Proposers and opponents of a proposal to bar produce trucks from parking at night on Washington street, Central avenue and other streets in the vicinity of produce row, will have their innning beginning at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the city hall before a joint committee composed of the produce committee of council and members of the second ward delegation in council.

The public hearing is slated with a design to iron out existing differences concerning the parking of the trucks, with members of the second ward delegation insisting that the trucks be removed from that area, while the produce growers and other interested parties insist that the trucks should do "everything possible to encourage the farmer and assist him in marketing his crops to the best advantage."

C. D. Knight, former councilman from the ninth ward, and others are interested in obtaining a suitable place for the trucks to park.

Attorneys representing the growers also will appear in their behalf.

Order Bars Hubby Use of Wife's Car

Samuel E. Sweatman Wednesday was restrained by Judge G. H. Howard of Fulton superior court, from using the automobile of his wife, Mrs. Lucy Sweatman, and from interfering with Mrs. Sweatman or her property. The order was signed in connection with a divorce and alimony suit filed by the wife.

Scores Are Left Homeless By Night Apartment Fire

Sleeping Residents Awakened, Flee in Scant Attire; Damage to Property Estimated at $125,000.

Estimated damage of $125,000 to the structure and an undetermined loss of many thousands of dollars in household goods and personal property belonging to 21 families driven from their apartments was the monetary toll taken by Wednesday's early morning conflagration which destroyed the Knox apartments, 1420 Peachtree street.

Having for the most part fled in night clothing, while the building escaped damage to the harrowing experience of the residents, the families, numbering about 100 persons, Wednesday were refugees in downtown hotels or at the homes of friends and neighbors, several reported having saved no clothing or any other personal property.

Injured Persons.

The following persons were overcome by smoke or injured in the blaze:

Hal Webster, overcome by smoke; Captain George Tumlin, fractured collar bone and lacerations; Junior Captain H. S. Joiner and Firemen C. L. Norman, M. L. Grubbs, slight injuries received when part of the roof crashed, and Fireman A. M. Birks, severely cut on the head.

The fire broke out shortly after midnight, it was determined later in the day, and was discovered shortly after 1 o'clock by a taxicab driver, who called attention of C. A. Green, who is in charge of the apartment building, to it. Several firemen hurried to go into the building. Origin of the blaze had not been definitely determined late Wednesday, but fire officials held to their earlier theory that it had started in the basement. Every fire unit in the city was called to the scene, and by the time most of the lines were connected the fire, already had gathered such headway as to make the task confronting the firemen almost a hopeless one.

Occupants Awakened.

Occupants of the dwelling were awakened by Skeen and the wife of the negro janitor, who ran through the halls knocking on doors and raising the alarm. Aroused from their sleep to discover the flames licking at the stayways of the building, the residents, in their excitement had no time to sift themselves, and in most instances ran down fire escapes and were assisted down ladders in night clothing. Skeen and the janitor's wife played heroic roles in the rescue work, the latter finding herself cut off at one time when she had started to descend from a window when she found that all residents had been notified. On the landing of the second floor the janitor's wife found herself cut off from further retreat by flames, and saved her own life by jumping from a hall window to the ground below.

Those whose furniture and other household property, as well as personal belongings, were lost in the fire were:

O. W. Russell, Mrs. P. N. Terrell, Mrs. Cheston King, J. C. Underwood, Mrs. Lewis Gibson, W. T. Hippay, Mrs. L. H. Nixon, R. F. Mullay, Mrs. John Crispell, M. K. Gibson, Mrs. Harry Turney, Miss Edna Brown, J. H. Rogers, J. K. Converse, P. A. Letheridge, Mrs. Norman Mitchell, Mrs. Doris Clayton, Mrs. Ouida Browning and Mrs. J. M. Murdoch. Misses Barnes and Mrs. E. V. Snipes.

$125,000 Damage.

Fitzhugh Knox & Sons, owners of the Knox apartments, Wednesday arrived at the estimated loss of $125,000. They said, however, that of this damage, approximately 90 per cent was covered by insurance.

Several firemen had narrow escapes in fighting the conflagration. Captain George Tumlin, 50, of 42 Peachtree avenue, escaped only with the loss of a leg, near one of the high-pressure hose lines laid around the exterior of the building when suddenly it burst in two, a loose end whisking the fireman over as the pressure sent it into a wild swirling swirl. Captain Tumlin was taken to Grady hospital, where it was found he had suffered a broken collar bone and lacerations about the face and head.

Firemen Norman and Grubbs, with Junior Captain Joiner, were on the third floor when a portion of the roof caved in upon them, for a moment threatening to pin them hope-

FOE 'DISINHERITED' SELF, SAYS RUSSELL

Candidate Assails Carswell for Taking Ed Rivers "Unto His Breast."

ROCHELLE, Ga., Sept. 17.—(Special) Charging that George H. Carswell, his opponent in the gubernatorial runoff, has "disinherited himself" and "spat in the face of his (Carswell's) own faction" by "taking Ed Rivers unto his breast," Richard B. Russell, Jr., leading gubernatorial candidate in last week's primary, continues his vigorous assaults on factionalism and what he termed "trading in the people's offices" in an address here Wednesday.

"How can Mr. Carswell reconcile his totally different attitudes of 10 days ago and now?" asked Mr. Russell. "Then we heard him vilifying Ed Rivers and Rivers vilifying Carswell. Today, we see the two folded in each other's arms in one of the most touching of love scenes.

"Mr. Carswell, formerly championing the defense of the present business administration, hair-apart to the throne of one of the old political rings, has felt the tempest of the people's anger and has been driven to it. He will no longer submit to factional or ring rule, with all its disgusting sidelines. Consequently, he has reached the point of sheer desperation, in which he is floundering about in vain efforts to stem the rapidly growing tide of sentiment against his brand of politics.

"Hoping against hope that a fusion of his old ring with that other one, represented by Ed Rivers, might halt the execution of the people's verdict, he has traded with Rivers and produced a political package that thousands of citizens—indeed, thinking citizens—will refuse to swallow.

"The voters can no more reconcile George Carswell and his crowd with Ed Rivers than they could mix oil and water. It is only necessary to review the things Carswell and Rivers have said and done during the campaign before the first primary in order to see just what a ridiculous position the two men are occupying.

"Rank inconsistency, platform acrobatics, appeals to sectional lines, reflections on certain institutions and political trades and combines will receive the emphatic denunciation of the voters of Georgia two weeks from today."

conceive the adoption of its principles to be of paramount necessity to the good of the state, and I am sticking to it for exactly the same reason. I am more firmly convinced than ever that the people of the state are tired of the way things have been run by these factional leaders and representatives of big money interests.

"The primary September 10 was an effort to hold the election, and to postpone and postpone, for the sake of political expediency, to stem the rapidly growing tide of sentiment against his brand of politics.

Though approximately 108 cities of the United States are represented in the list of applicants, by far the greater number come from Georgia, 140 being from Atlanta alone. A freshman class, numbering 125 to 150, will be chosen from among these applicants, President Jacobs stated.

NYE COMMITTEE FIRM ON M'CORMICK PROBE

Plea To Enter Defense Refused Illinois Attorney-General.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The state committee investigating campaign expenditures today denied for the last time a plea of Attorney-General Oscar C. Carlson, of Illinois, that he be allowed to present a statement in defense of Ruth Hanna McCormick, republican nominee for the United States senate.

With this gesture the committee calculated to purge the remaining hearings of everything pertaining to charges of espionage, wire tapping and desk rifling and to confine strictly along the lines of its main inquiry. This policy was declared yesterday, though the reason advanced then for not hearing Carlson was that Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, was not present.

"The committee's statement," said a letter to Carlson signed by three members of the committee, "and learning therefrom that the proof you offer concerns actions of persons having no connection whatsoever, now or any other time, with this committee, or any of its employees, the committee desired to be honorable and irreverent to the work it is directed to perform."

"We are prompted to stress as another reason for denying your request the fact that the statement attributed to you by the press as to just action by the committee is false and misleading."

The signers of the letter were North Dakota Senator Gerald P. Nye; Senator C. C. Dill, of Washington, and Senator Wagner.

Senator Roscoe Patterson, of Missouri, did not sign. He also witheld comment on the action of the committee yesterday.

Carlson's statement, released to the press, had charged employees of the committee tapped wires and performed other acts of espionage upon Mrs. McCormick whose expenditures in the April primaries were under investigation.

The statement offered to prove the charges and said further that a direct connection between Chairman Nye and the alleged acts of espionage was established when the committee subpoenaed detectives whom Mrs. McCormick had engaged in a man's pretension to betray his trust.

The names, Carlson charged, were purchased by a David Grob from Kenneth Wilson, an operative for the W. C. Dannenberg detective agency which was employed by Mrs. McCormick to shadow Nye.

Yesterday Mrs. McCormick charged the committee's refusal to hear Carlson was a deliberate attempt to suppress facts.

The espionage matter was mentioned again today by Barney Thompson, editor of the Rockford (Ill.) Republic, as well as Mrs. McCormick, when he took the witness stand.

Nye, Dill and Wagner were on their feet at once to reaffirm their

LINCOLN SARCOPHAGUS BROKEN FOR SOUVENIRS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The white marble sarcophagus in which the body of Abraham Lincoln repose from 1874 to 1876 has fallen prey to souvenir hunters.

Lift upon the lawn of the Lincoln memorial here where the work of rebuilding the first tomb of the emancipator was started, the sarcophagus has been dismantled and some parts of it carried away.

It was not intended that the sarcophagus should figure in the restored tomb, but it was to have been preserved for its historical associations.

It was believed here that the dismantling of the sarcophagus was the result of a misunderstanding among the workmen as to what disposition was to be made of it. At one time it was proposed that the body of Mrs. Lincoln be placed in the sarcophagus and that it be set in one of the crypts. Another suggestion was that it be placed elsewhere in the tomb.

THE STRADDLERS.

The prohibition situation grows and thickens daily. It becomes more aggravated and intolerable as government, parties and politicians muddle in it. The only pleasing phase of it is the approaching certainty that the people will not much longer submit to having the real problem dodged and delayed by those who are using it for political protection.

A MOTHER OF MEN.
Observant and just men and women all over the nation will feel in their hearts to congratulate Mrs. Belle Case La Follette, widow of famous Senator "Battling Bob" La Follette, upon the signal political successes of her sons.

The elder one, Robert Marion La Follette, Jr., was elected in Wisconsin in September, 1925, when a few months over the age to be a senator, to succeed his deceased father, and was re-elected in 1928 to the term ending March 4, 1935. Now the younger brother, Philip, 33 years of age, has won the republican nomination, equivalent of election, to be governor of Wisconsin, in which office his father became nationally famous for progressive achievements.

It is not the politics of these two young men that intrigues the interest and admiration of the country, but the fine and wise character of their mother, a lady of superb culture and intuitions that are almost seerlike. She was the acknowledged best counsellor of her great husband. She early obtained the profound respect and confidence of her sons and has guided them with the devotion of a Cornelia and the courage of the mother of the Gracchi.

To her these notable and popular La Follette brothers owe the sound training, wise guidance and prudent counsel that have won them their favor with their people and won for them their signal success.

How happy must be that mother whose devotion has formed such men and whom she can proudly advancing in the confidence of their fellows and to the high honors
of the state and nation!

COME ON WITH THE FACTS.
Old Admiral Dewey is reputed to have said that while he did not know "whether the constitution follows the flag" he did know that the supreme court follows the election return! It looks now that the Wickersham law enforcement commission is preparing to do that last act.

In Illinois a straight-out prohibition candidate for the senate has been put in the field against Mrs.
McCormick, nominated on a strad-
dle platform by the republicans.

In California both parties nominated wet candidates for governor on straddle platforms. Now the "hell-bent or bust" prohibitionists are expected to nominate a candidate of their own, thus giving the people of their state an opportunity to make a direct expression on the question.

In every such instance those who take this attitude are to be commended at least for having the courage of their conviction, which is more than can be said of the straddle performers among those of the political leaders who are afraid to make a direct expression on the issue.

Truth is, both parties are apparently hopelessly divided on this issue and out of it may eventually come a general party split-up in this country.

The Anti-Saloon League has now
lost both Wheelers and its war-chariot is running lopsided.

The primary will soon be an unpopular as prohibition.

What Georgia needs is somebody to get us out of the red before Christmas.

The drys are hard put these elections.

THE WORLD'S

WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Rousseau's Room.

The house in Chambery where Jean Jacques Rousseau wrote his "Confessions" which has been left untouched for 200 years has been opened to the public as a museum
by the three windows," which Madame de Warens placed at the disposal of the 18-year-old writer, is about the size of a day's stay in the house where Jean Jacques sat in it to write down the ideas which have since thrown the world upside down. The furniture, which the famous author considered
"luxurious and elegant," looks rather poor, although it is excellent state of preservation. When we visited the place, the only American, a middle-aged motorist, was making his way to Aix les Bains, happened to be let through at the same time. One lady asked the keeper severely where the bathroom was. The keeper had to admit that there wasn't any. "In America," came the rather reply, "even the working classes have bathrooms."

The keeper hung his head in shame.

"This Madame de Warens was a noble?" it was asked.

"Yes, noble and rich. The Duke of Savoy paid her 2,000 pounds a year."

"And no bathroom, not even a washroom?" "Parson," came back the keeper. "She was not a dirty woman."

But what would you, America had not been invented. She probably washed her hands at the pump in the yard."

"No carpets here, no chintz, no curtains, no tapestries, no pictures."

"No," said the keeper with a sigh.

And so we stepped over the boards, which sagged here and there;

through the bedroom where thousands of pilgrims have come from all parts of the world and where a schoolboy
once wrote the rising sun above the hills of St. Sulpice where he reconstructed the house according to his dreams. A bare room with poor furniture, but the birthplace of a sacred revolution as profound as Christianity, a room without washstand, but from which have gone out into the world the principles of 1789.

The French revolution, the revolt of the American colonies, socialism, bolshevism, Chinese independence . . . and heaven knows what is yet to come!"

IF ANY ONE has been deluded by the claim that President Hoover insisted upon the retention of the flexible provision of the act to the end that he would have in it a weapon with which to defend the interests of the common people, that delusion should be dissipated by the personnel of the commission that the president has picked. The majority of it can be depended upon to protect the industries and need the least protection and turn over to them the earnings and wages of the millions who need to be protected from cormorants and extortionists.

BECAUSE THE "Cuzists."

The idea of a United States of Europe, M. Aristide Briand's proposal to save the old world from disintegration, is not liked by the Cuzists in Rumania. The Cuzists in Rumania are the followers of Professor A. C. Cuszi, leader of the nationalist-Christian party and notorious anti-Semite, whose incessant Jew-baiting activities must be held responsible for the recent anti-Jewish excesses. The chief organ of the Cuzists declares that the plan is nothing else but an insidious attempt to put the whole of Europe under control of the Jews. And M. Briand is the willing tool of a great international Jewish conspiracy, which has its headquarters in Wall Street on the one side and the world on the other, in the Kremlin on the other side. The theory is that in a country like Rumania, which is struggling to achieve a measure of prosperity for its inhabitants, a numerically unimportant
group should give the outside world
the impression that the twilight of the several hundred years of rule over the Danube is at hand. The nationalistic Cuzists are free, of course, to disagree with M. Briand's scheme. If they think a federated Europe would harm their fatherland, it is up to them as
good citizens to fight and dissuade the Rumanian authorities from adhering to the proposal. But when you
mention the ancient and long-explored
myth of a Jewish world conspiracy
they make not only themselves ridiculous,
but they harm their country also. For being gifted with an immense capacity to shout, it is their
habit to receive the traffic implications
of the world. And, worse of all, when they print articles day after day, urging
the peasantry to "kill the Jews and loot their shops," often proceeding to put the action to the words, they
must realize that advice from them
on important international questions
will receive scant hearing among civilians.

The idea of a United States of

a measure of prosperity for its inhabitants, a numerically unimportant

Cuzists are free, of course, to disagree
with M. Briand's scheme. If they

their fatherland, it is up to them as
good citizens to fight and dissuade the Rumanian authorities from adhering to
the proposal. But when you
mention the ancient and long-explored
myth of a Jewish world conspiracy
they make not only themselves ridiculous,
but they harm their country also. For being gifted with an immense capacity to shout, it is their
habit to receive the traffic implications
of the world. And, worse of all, when they
print articles day after day, urging
the peasantry to "kill the Jews and
loot their shops," often proceeding to
put the action to the words, they
must realize that advice from them
on important international questions
will receive scant hearing among
civilians.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

A DREADFUL SIGHT.

By Thornton K. Burgess.

Who loveth most the most doth fear when danger threatens those most dear. —Old Mother Nature.

Impy the black Chipmunk had been away from home longer than usual. Not since there had been a little Mrs. Impy had he been away so long. He had been exploring; he had been looking for food; he had been looking for a supply of nuts and seeds. He had discovered a beechnut tree and there were going to be very many beech-nuts. Now Impy was hurrying home with the good news. From a fence-post he looked over to where the entrance to his home little house. He thought he might see Little Mrs. Impy somewhere about. Almost at once he saw something moving. He got only a glimpse of a small person and he thought, of course, that it was Little Mrs. Impy. "It must be her," thought Impy, "I know I'm here." Impy began to shiver and he began to bark a greeting. But he didn't bark a greeting. Instead, he closed his mouth without uttering a sound. He began to shiver and he began to shake. That small person was not a Mrs. Impy, but all Impy was a stranger whom he had never seen before. However, he needed no introduction: he knew who he was without being told. There could be no one else so slim, so quick-moving. It was Shadow the Weasel.

Now, in himself, Shadow is not a dreadful sight. He is rather pretty.

It was a stranger he had never seen before.

way that led down into Impy's home; and there was nothing that Impy could think of that could have been a more dreadful sight.

"He's found our home," thought Impy. "He's found our home and he's caught Frisky. I know it. I just know it. Oh dear! Oh dear! I don't care if he catches me pretty. Oh dear! Oh dear!"

Meanwhile, Impy did the very easiest thing that a Chipmunk could do. He sat perfectly still. He didn't move so much as one little whisker. He just sat there shivering and shuddering inside his little house.

Shadow the Weasel was licking his lips. Yes, sir, he was licking his lips.

He had just come out of Impy's home, just as Impy had thought. Impy was sure that Shadow had killed little Mrs. Impy. She had probably been working down there in the home and Shadow had surprised her there and caught her. It was too dreadful to think of. Impy had to think of it.

Presently Shadow sat up on his haunches, as he sometimes does; and with that black body of his he took this way and he looked that way and he looked the other way.

He looked straight at Impy, but he didn't see him, for Impy didn't move.

Then Shadow yawned.

After which he bounded away in the direction of a stone wall on the edge of the Old Orchard, where Impy was born and where his father, Striped Chipmunk, still lived.

For a long time after Shadow had gone, Impy sat there on that fence-post. He was no longer afraid for himself, but, oh, how he did dread going into that home! You see, he was so sure of what he would find there that it was too dreadful to think of.

Past Due Payments Demanded of Gewinner

Unless he contributes $325 toward restitution of $1,200 of which he admitted defrauding the government about four years ago, Holt J. Gewinner, one of the principal figures in the organization of "Black Shirts," will be brought before United States Judge Samuel H. Sibley, federal officials said Wednesday.

Although Gewinner is several months behind in making payments as prescribed in an order Judge Sibley signed after suspending a 12 months' penitentiary sentence on Gewinner, the case lay dormant until United States Attorney Clint W. Hager recently directed R. A. Chappell, probation officer, in whose custody Judge Sibley placed Gewinner, to either pay the money he owes the government or show cause why the parole should not be revoked.

In addition to the $325 which has marked Gewinner's settlement of the $1,200, federal officials also are directing attention to a warrant which recently was sent here from Greenville, S. C., charging Gewinner with attempted fraud, and also to the attorney general's claim against the city of Atlanta for use of the auditorium on a bank in which the Black Shirt organization had no commercial account. Gewinner's parole stipulates that he shall be a law-abiding citizen.

Continued rumors were heard Wednesday that the "Black Shirts" as an organization had disbanded. Efforts to confirm this report were unsuccessful. Walter A. Sims, who has been identified in court litigation as one of the "American facists" inner circle, but who stated Wednesday he had nothing to do with the "Black Shirts" except to act in the capacity of attorney for the application for a charter, said that the office, "the last time I heard of it," was at 101-12 Whitehall street.

The Whitehall address showed no evidence of occupancy by the "Black Shirts." Tenants in the building stated that they had not seen any of the members of the Black Shirts and that as far as they knew, the facists never had an office there.

Another Atlantan who was prominent in the order when it was started, Wednesday stated that he "was through," and that he did not care to have his name mentioned in connection with it. He asserted he did not know where the office was located or anything else about the "Black Shirts."

NEW 'CO-OP' LAUNCHED BY TOBACCO GROWERS

for the formation of the marketing association.

The "relief commission" now the organization committee, was named yesterday at mass meetings in the tobacco producing counties. Forty-seven counties were represented at today's deliberations.

Governor Gardner is expected to announce the membership of the executive committee tomorrow.

James C. Steward, chairman of the tobacco farm board, assured a mass meeting today that the board would go to the limit in providing financial assistance to the proposed co-operative.

The decision to organize was made by the newly formed "North Carolina tobacco relief commission," which formally designated itself as an organization committee to launch the new association.

The committee authorized Governor O. Max Gardner to name an executive committee of five members to draft the necessary papers and agreements formation of the marketing organization, which, it was decided, will be composed of two branch associations—one in the eastern and one in the old tobacco belts of the state.

The general committee voted that it was its desire to secure, if possible, Frank Pace, former state highway commissioner, to head and direct the co-operative organization.

Banks' Agricultural Group Begins Its Farm Campaign

Meetings Will Be Attended by Financiers, Farmers, County Agents and State College Representatives.

LAVONIA, Ga., Sept. 17.—Under the direction of the agricultural committee of the Georgia Bankers' Association, a campaign is being made to provide Georgia with a new and balanced farm program. Walter N. Harrison, vice president of the First National Bank of Lavonia, who is chairman of this committee, states that work is being carried vigorously in an effort to make Georgia out of the slough of dependency created by an unbalanced farm program.

The cooperation of the farmers, the extension department of the State College of Agriculture, and bankers assures the success of the plan now functioning, according to Mr. Harrison.

He also attended the Clearing House Association of Atlanta, Macon, Savannah, and Augusta are squarely behind this movement.

The state has been divided into 18 sections, each section having its chairman. This division is based on the particular type of farming in these subdivisions. Meetings will be held in all sections between September 20 and October 15. Dates have already been arranged in the following named towns: Lakeland, September 18; Brunswick, September 19; Thomson, September 23; Washington, September 24; Valdosta, September 25; Waycross, September 24; Dawson, September 25; Perry, September 25; Rome, September 25; Vienna, September 26; Griffin, September 26.

Will Discuss Vital Questions.

Every banker, every county agent and every county commissioners' agent will be invited to attend at least one of these meetings. It is proposed to discuss questions which are vital to the agricultural interest of Georgia and to formulate farm programs suitable to various sections of Georgia. At Perry, Vienna, Pelham and Dawson, the following topics will be discussed: "Under What Conditions Can Bankers Safely Finance Farm Production in 1931?" "Benefits To Be Derived from a Community Standpoint by Following a Well-Balanced Farm Program," "Some Difficulties Experienced in Financing Farmers," "Benefits Derived by Hay-

WRENS, Ga., Sept. 17.—Mrs. C. P. Hendy, 59, who was driving while her husband slept, was killed shortly after midnight Wednesday when a car left the road and struck a post. Mrs. Hendy was thrown through the windshield, and died instantly.

Mr. Hendy, who is district manager for Florida for the Seventh Day Adventists, was only slightly bruised. He and Mrs. Hendy were on the way from Spartanburg, S. C., to their home in Wrens, which is about 10 miles from Wrens. The car passed through here Mr. Hendy became sleepy and as a matter of precaution asked his wife to drive.

Mr. Hendy is from Ottawa, Canada, and Mrs. Hendy, who was Miss Myrtle Acey before her marriage, was from Iowa. Mr. Hendy was buried here Wednesday afternoon.

Similar programs will be observed at all the other meetings in the state. At other meetings the following subjects will be discussed: "Financing Power Plants in 1931," "Types of Crops That May Be Financed," "The Type of Spring Crops That May Be Financed," "Livestock," "Perfection of County Agricultural Boards."

SUSPECT CONFESSES BROWNING MURDER

VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 17.—(AP)—A confession that he fired the shot that killed W. H. Browning, aged filling station operator who with his wife was slain in a robbery the night of August 21, was made here Wednesday by Austin Westberry, one of six held for the double slaying according to Solicitor General G. C. Spurlin, of the Southern circuit.

The solicitor said Westberry made his confession to W. P. Kendall, Valdosta chief of police. County Policeman Ralph Middleton and Special Officer Hill. Mrs. Browning was shot twice.

The confession, the solicitor said, stated that Mrs. Browning was shot into the head by Westberry, a relative, but no explanation was made as to who fired the shot. He is said also to have implicated W. L. Chaney, Travers Erwin and Homer Padgett, all of whom are being held incommunicado in cities other than Valdosta. Owen Corbett is also under arrest in connection with the murder.

Certain details of Westberry's confession, the solicitor said, were being withheld for the present.

MACON LOAN FIRMS FREED AT HEARING

MACON, Ga., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Indictments against 28 operators of so-called loan agencies, returned by a Bibb county grand jury in 1928, were disposed of in the city court of Macon in less than 15 minutes Tuesday.

On written recommendation of Solicitor Pro Tem. Roland Ellis, who said that he had been convinced of the existence of grave doubt as to the guilt of practically all of the defendants, Judge Charles H. Hall, presiding, ordered the entire group of cases nol-prossed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—A refund of $33,241.05 was allowed the Columbus Manufacturing Company, of Columbus, Ga., Monday, from the federal taxes assessed for the year ending October 31, 1919. This comes as the result of an over-assessment representing a deficiency in tax collected after the expiration of the statutory period of limitations.

COLQUITT, Ga., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Kellar Godfrey, J. R. Ludlum and Redden Sheffield were held Wednesday on charges of assault with intent to murder for the wounding of Hubert Vann.

They were arrested yesterday. Vann was shot through the head Sunday night. He told Sheriff B. E. Houston that Godfrey fired the shot as a climax to an argument that arose fol-

Theft of Drugs Probed By Federal Officers

VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 17.—State and federal officers are trailing thieves who recently entered the building of the Valdosta Drug Company and stole a quantity of grain alcohol, one-fourth of a pound of opium.

The exact quantity of alcohol stolen has not yet been determined, though it is supposed to have been considerable and of more value. The "bootleg" value of the opium is placed at around $500.

From every indication the thieves were only after alcohol and narcotics, there being some money within easy reach and it was not touched.

Georgia Tobacco Growers Get $10,501,000 for Crop

Final Figures for Year Reveal Average Price of 9.86 Cents Per Pound.

Georgia bright leaf tobacco farmers received $10,501,228.63 for the 1930 record crop of 1,064,438,019 pounds, an average of 9.86 cents a pound, the state department of agriculture announced yesterday in making public final figures for the year.

The 90,743,220 crop of 1929 brought $16,672,780.37, an average price for the season of 13.47 cents a pound.

Habita led all Georgia markets in average price for the season with 11.20 cents a pound. Nashville was second at 11.08 and Adel third with 11.02.

The greatest poundage sold on a Georgia market was at Douglas, where 12,904,970 passed over the auction blocks. Valdosta was second highest in sales with 11,521,370, and Tifton third with 11,050,540 pounds.

Valdosta, Douglas and Tifton were the leaders among the markets having the largest receipts from sales, all over $1,000,000 each. Valdosta was high with $1,253,901.85. Douglas took second with $1,238,921.75, while Tifton was third with $1,170,278.26.

Wetmore men estimated the production at $60 million per acre in the bright leaf section.

Out-of-state sales of tobacco produced in Florida, Alabama and South Carolina and sold on the Georgia market totaled 3,177,860 pounds.

DAY IN FINANCE

By
R. L. BARNUM

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Stock market sentiment was helped by more favorable news in the weekly steel trade reviews and also by the announcement from President Bloom, of Western Electric, that during the last six weeks his company had purchased enough copper to take care of requirements of the Bell system for the next four months.

The 1930 expansion program of the Bell system calling for an outlay of $700,000,000 has not been changed, it was stated. By being able to buy at lower prices the company has saved 15 per cent in purchasing raw material since the beginning of this year.

Scattered evidences of breaking away from hand-to-mouth buying in the steel trade is reflected from that policy in many months. No sweeping change in the attitude of the steel trade has yet developed, it is reported, but the fact that any sizable forward commitments should be negotiated or even considered is sufficient to give the steel market a more buoyant tone.

Willingness to buy ahead, it is stated, has been most noticeable so far among consumers of pig iron, with a number covering requirements for the remainder of this year and some for the first half of 1931. Some large orders and inquiries are reported running from 2,500 tons to 10,000 tons. Automobile manufacturers, it is added, are showing an inclination to cover requirements in parts for the first six months of next year. Steel mills in the Cleveland district are now operating at 50 per cent of capacity against 41 a week ago and in the Pueblo district at 51 per cent of capacity against 48 a week ago.

Call Money

Call money was down on the stock exchange at 2 per cent against the recent 2 1/2. On the outside money market call loans were quoted at 1 1/2 per cent, with the amount of money offered exceeding the demand.

While the buying of copper by Western Electric was reported as variable, it was pointed out in Wall Street that the trend of copper prices in recent weeks in the face of this buying indicated plainly that there is still a buyers' market in copper. The present price of copper is the lowest in 30 years.

Today's August foreign trade statement given out by Washington did show a favorable balance of $83,000,000 against an excess of $11,000,000 in exports over imports for the corresponding period of last year. Aside from that, however, the statement reflects widespread slowing down last month in trade compared with a year ago.

Our merchandise exports for August foot up $300,000,000. This compares with $299,000,000 for July of this year and with $381,000,000 for August of 1929. Our imports for August were $217,000,000 against $250,000,000 for this July and $369,000,000 for August of last year. For the eight months of 1930 our exports foot $2,942,000,000 against $3,407,000,000 for the corresponding period of last year and our imports to $2,173,000,000 against $3,009,000,000. This makes a balance of trade in our favor of $469,000,000 against $387,000,000 for the first eight months of 1929.

Our gold exports for August were $25,000,000, up only $881,000 a year ago and our imports $19,714,000 making a balance against us of $19,618,000 against an excess of imports over exports of $18,390,000 a year ago. For the eight months gold exports were $30,522,000 against $8,738,000 for the corresponding period of 1929 and imports $273,502,000 against $209,504,000. For the eight months of this year we get in $183,000,000 more gold than we shipped out against a favorable balance of $227,363,000 for the first nine months of 1929.

Increased Savings

Greater New York reports an increase of $18,720,000 in savings bank deposits for August against a gain of $12,983,000 for July and $3,148,000 for June. There has been a steady gain of $261,000,000 since last November.

Standard Oil and other oil companies starting to sell tires as a side line in gasoline stations are going to find the experiment unprofitable, in the opinion of President O'Neill, of the General Tire and Rubber Company. Hardware jobbers, wholesale groceries, wholesale druggists, mail order houses and others have tried the same experiment in the past two years, O'Neill says, with dwindling financial results.

"The oil companies," he says, "use the same old method of figuring as to what they can sell. They have estimated that as it had 400 salesmen, if each salesmen sold one tire a day it would mean a total daily sale of 400 tires. The oil companies figure that with so many thousand gasoline stations each will sell a tire a day, making daily sales so many thousand. But each station will not sell a tire a day. It is claimed that the contacts which the oil companies have with tire dealers will enable the sale of tires. A barber has plenty of contacts, but he can't sell Packard cars. If a barber with contacts with wealthy customers could sell one Packard car a week, think how his overhead would be reduced. But he needs more than contacts to sell cars. Oil companies in handling tires are under the handicap of inexperienced operators and a lack of funds for advertising.

The methods employed in selling oil and gasoline cannot be used in merchandising a comparatively expensive commodity such as an automobile tire. The oil companies have expanded to much in their distributing facilities and they are looking about for some way out to plus their volume so that they can sell more tires. The attempt to merchandise tires through gasoline stations probably will be just about as successful as the efforts of hardware stores and for about the same reasons."

Action on Norfolk and Western's dividend is scheduled for October 28. Despite the selling that has occurred on the stocks, it is expected the past year Norfolk and Western stockholders will split up four for one. It is believed too, that a split up is coming in Union Pacific.

Kelly - Springfield Wins Receivership Test

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Action instituted by James Kelly, Jersey City real estate man, and two other stockholders to have the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company placed in hands of a receiver was dismissed today by Vice Chancellor Fallon.

The action came after two counsel for the complainants withdrew from the case and expressed belief that the suit "was not instituted in all sincerity."

Sugar.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Raw sugar was firmer today and while some appeared to be little better demand, it came principally from operators, with local refiners showing little. The area, however, was active and firms included 30,000 bags of Cuban for an October shipment as an output refiner at $1.20 per bag. The market was at $1.20 while another operator paid $2.00 for 18,000 bags for September delivery. For September-October shipment, the market was at $1.20 per bag.

The market opened unchanged to 1 point higher and later showed an additional gain of 1 point. The market was active on covering and buying by the refiners, with some partial reactions followed with the market closing net unchanged to 2 points higher. Approximate sales were only 14,530 bags. John Brandon Pencil Sketches To Be Seen at Museum Oct. 1-15

An exhibition of pencil sketches by John Brandon, of Sacramento, Calif., well-known American artist, will be placed on view at the High Museum of Art, October 1-15, replacing October 1 the collection of water color flower paintings of Marie Bonner, which are now being shown in the auditorium of the museum. Mr. Brandon's sketches, which were largely done in California during the gold digging rush of 1849, depict the life of that period. Old shacks, homes of the gold diggers and mining scenes, done with unusual regard for detail.

The collection of pencil sketches will offer a pleasing contrast to the water color flower pictures of Marie Bonner, which are now being shown at the museum. Chrysanthemums, larkspur, orchids, the fruits, leaves and flowers of autumn and spring, are all included in this colorful, well-drawn group of water colors which are being viewed by hundreds throughout the city.

Among the most appealing pictures in the collection are "Tulips," "Ornamental Phantasm," "Larkspur," "Arabesque," "Reflections of the East," and "Profundity." Not only large and pretentious paintings and the smaller and simpler studies are included in the group. The artist has done each study with a fine feeling for the difference of texture of the various objects in the pictures and a refreshing freedom from modernism in its most extreme form.

Miss Bonner, who is a co-worker with Anna Fisher, one of the three women national academicians in America, is a member of the National Association of Women Painters and Sculptors, the American Water Color Society. She has been in New York city. Miss Dearborn was born in Birmingham, the daughter of Alexander R. and Mary Patton Dearborn. Mr. Edwards is a native of Cuthbert, Ga., the son of Joseph A. and Emily Miller Edwards.

SHERLOCK HOLMES—The Musgrave Ritual

From the chest he brought up a small wooden box with a sliding lid, and out of it produced a crumpled piece of paper, an old-fashioned brass key, a peg of wood with a ball of string attached to it, and three rusty old discs of metal. "Well, my boy, what do you make of this lot?" he asked, smiling at my expression.

Miss Dearborn and J. E. Edwards Are Married in New York City

The photograph presents Mrs. Joseph Lee Edwards, formerly Miss Mary Augusta Dearborn, of Birmingham, Ala., whose marriage was solemnized yesterday at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York city.

Word has been received in Atlanta of the marriage of Miss Mary Augusta Dearborn, of Birmingham, Ala., daughter of Mrs. Alexander R. Dearborn, and the late Mr. Dearborn, of that city, to Joseph Lee Edwards, prominent Atlanta and vice president and traffic manager of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Coast railroad. The ceremony was performed yesterday afternoon at the Little Church Around the Corner, New York city. Miss Dearborn is widely known here through frequent visits. Mr. Edwards is the brother of Miss Kate Edwards, distinguished painter of this city, and Mrs. W. C. Lovett, principal of the Lovett school.

The bride was given in marriage by her godfather, M. F. Gorman, of Washington, D. C. She wore a beading model, gauze-trimmed chiffon trimmed with touches of lace. An off-the-shoulder beret cap of ecru velvet completed the costume. A shoulder spray of orchids and lilies of the valley adorned her shoulder.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwards took a long flight to Paris for their two-month stay in Paris, where the bride's mother, Mrs. Alexander R. Dearborn, is the guest of Mrs. Warner W. Croxton, sister of the bride, who now makes her home in Paris. Mrs. Croxton formerly lived in Birmingham and in Atlanta, where Mr. Croxton was connected with the A. B. & C. railroad. Upon their return to Atlanta, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards will make their home in the Pershing Park.

Mrs. Edwards visited here throughout a period of years as the guest of Mrs. John Marsh, the former Miss Margaret Mitchell, at her home on Peachtree street, and made this on her return for several months during the residence of her sister here.

Her unusual lyric soprano voice has won for her a wide circle of friends here and in New York, where she studied for several years. After taking voice with Miss Sam McMillan, of Birmingham, she continued her war work at the New York University, and later with Miss Emma Thurston, widely known instructor of that city. For the past two years she has been a member of the Little Theater Opera Company of New York city. Her marriage is the culmination of a friendship which began during her residence here more than seven years ago.

Mrs. Edwards is descended from a long line of distinguished ancestry. Her parents moved, following their marriage in Richmond, Va., to Birmingham, to make their home. Mrs. Dearborn, the mother, the former Miss Mary Patton of Richmond, daughter of Dr. James Houston Patton, of Richmond, surgeon of the Confederate army, and Ann Boyd Patton, of Lynchburg, Va., was a noted belle of Richmond. Mrs. Edwards is also a descendant of General Henry Dearborn, of Revolutionary fame.

ALLEN'S PLAYS NO FAVORITES!

SMALL credit to us, however, that we don't! This is no time for partiality. This is a season of amazing variety . . . when the new tweeds of Lucile Paray, the Russian feeling in crepes expressed originally by Louise-boulanger, the lace yokes and sleeves introduced by Carette, are all crowding forward to claim attention: . . . when black is all important, until we consider the new browns, and wines and greens: . . . when the Vionnet neck-line of last season returns in many of the newest and smartest frocks: . . . when waistlines have settled down to normal and hem lines evened up all round! Allen's wisely plays no favorites! There is a place on the fashionable calendar for all these new and lovely styles. Allen's judiciously presents them all!

LA FOLLETTE VICTORY ELATES ATLANTA

Henry M. Powell, Friend of Gubernatorial Nominee, Acclaims Him.

Henry M. Powell, general agent of the State Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Worcester, Mass., was elated yesterday at the report of the overwhelming victory of Philip F. La Follette as the republican nominee for governor of Wisconsin.

Mr. Powell is a native of Wisconsin and was a classmate of "Little Bob" La Follette, brother of Phil, at the University of Wisconsin.

Both sons of the former ex-Governor and Senator Robert M. La Follette, one son having succeeded him as United States senator and the other is to follow him as governor.

Mr. Powell is a friend and former associate of both the boys, of whom he said yesterday:

"I am delighted at the victory of Philip F. La Follette, the youngest son of the late Robert M. La Follette, and brother of Senator Robert M. La Follette, nominated for governor of Wisconsin over Governor Kohler. His nomination is practically the same as his election. It's a great victory for the progressive party, especially for the La Follette family, now represented in the United States senate by the son of former Governor and Senator La Follette."

"I knew Bob better than I knew Phil, for we were classmates. I recall that for one day in preparing for the first time as freshman at the University of Wisconsin, I was very democratic and was elected president of the freshman class. His slogan was 'You know what Big Bob did for Wisconsin—give Little Bob a chance.' On another place on the College Companion poster he had these words: 'History will repeat itself.' The oldest son is now senator of the United States, the youngest man ever to take a seat in that select body. His boy also repeats itself with the younger son, Philip La Follette.

Senator Robert M. La Follette, the father, graduated from Wisconsin in 1879, and Phil was graduated just a few years ago. The first political office that Robert, Sr., held was district attorney in Dane county, and shortly after Phil graduated from Wisconsin he, too, was elected to the same office. Robert, Sr., became governor of Wisconsin from 1901 to 1905.

J. OSCAR VAUGHAN TO BE BURIED FRIDAY

Former Active Businessman of Atlanta Dies at Home Wednesday.

Services will be held at 10 o'clock

Friday morning at the Sacred Heart church for J. Oscar Vaughan, 72, prominent resident of Atlanta and attorney.

He died in his sleep in his home, 162 Peachtree circle. Father John Emmert will officiate.

Palbearers will be L. A. Morris, Robert B. Troutman, Ewing Dean, Dr. William McDougal, Dr. Stephen Barnett, Thomas Howell Scott, William H. Schroeder and Felix De Golian.

Although he had been in failing health several years, the passing of Mr. Vaughan was unexpected and a shock to the many friends of his in this city and section. Recently he had returned from Florida, to which state he customarily made frequent trips for rest and recreation.

Coming to Atlanta from Virginia in 1900, Mr. Vaughan at once took an active interest in civic and business affairs here, being southern representative of a large spool cotton concern. His services in this field of the cotton industry, together with an active social life, soon caused him to be a host of friends throughout the south. He retired several years ago and spent his time between Atlanta and Florida.

A native Virginian, Mr. Vaughan was a member of the prominent families of the Old Dominion state. He was born April 7, 1858, at Amelia Courthouse, Virginia, a son of Dr. Adolphus Vaughan, well-known physician, and Lucia Howard Estates Vaughan. Shortly after his return to Atlanta at the turn of the century he married Miss Clifford Kiser and they made their home on Fourteenth street, where social Atlanta soon recognized them as hospitable hosts and leaders of a cultural circle.

A member of the Sacred Heart church and the Holy Name Society, Mr. Vaughan took a leading part in activities of both church and society, and was well known for his endeavors in charitable activities.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lucie Vaughan, of Lynchburg; three daughters, Mrs. Harry Di Cristina, Mrs. Frank C. Williams, and Mrs. William Tidmarsh of Jacksonville, and Mrs. George B. Gelly, of St. Petersburg; a brother, B. Estes Vaughan, of Lexington, Va., and two sisters, Mrs. Della H. Howard and Mrs. J. V. Hudson, both of Lynchburg.

Completed funeral arrangements will be announced later, it was said.

Negro Gets 8 Months For Carrying Pistol

Determination to break up pistol carrying was reaffirmed Wednesday by the use of the death penalty in the court of Atlanta, when it sentenced Jim Hudson, Thomas Howell Scott, William H. Schroeder and Felix De Golian.

Testimony in court, when Hudson pleaded guilty, revealed that the negro was captured by the late Captain Clegg Crankshaw and his partner, Officers R. C. McGill, a week before Crankshaw was killed by a negro in a pistol battle. Officer McGill shot Hudson in the arm as the latter attempted to use his pistol when the officers called to him, it was said. Hudson was watching a man who had garnished him, the court was told.

Two Georgians Win Naval Appointments

Two young Georgians, George F. Pittard, of Gainesville, and Theodore S. Saunders, of Claxton, have successfully passed the recent competitive examination to qualify them to enter the navy for entrance to the United States Naval Academy.

The two Georgians have been appointed to the midshipmen class, it was announced Wednesday by Lieutenant Commander A. W. Ashbrook, of the Georgia Tech Navy R. O. T. C.

The Tech unit, Commander Ashbrook said, is being swamped with applications for enrollment.

A number of ex-athletes, already having filed their requests for enrollment and it is expected this year will find about 236 student officers.

Georges Transferred To Chicago Consulate

Dr. Barnard Georges, in charge of the German consulate here, will leave today for Chicago, where he has been transferred due to the temporary closing of the district office here, he announced Wednesday.

He visited Mayor I. N. Ragsdale Wednesday afternoon and paid his respects, expressing hope that the Atlanta office will be ordered reopened within the near future and that he will be sent back to Atlanta, where he has many warm friends.

Several weeks ago, C. F. Palmer, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, visited Germany and at that time carried credentials and a petition from Mayor Ragsdale requesting the commissioner of foreign affairs of Germany to continue the office here. It is expected that through these representations the German foreign office will order the branch reopened within the next few weeks.

A merchandising plan ...worth investigating

A representative will call to explain how you can use this merchandising plan to increase sales. Call the Telephone Business Office

The Classified Telephone Directory is planned so that the name, address and telephone number of any type of business may be listed where it can be easily found by anyone seeking any particular product or service offered by a concern.

Business firms may provide additional information for the convenience and guidance of the buying public by adding some descriptive matter to their listings, explaining in detail the products or services they offer.

A firm in the lumber business, for example, may be represented under different classifications, such as "Lumber", "Millwork", "Roofing Material", "Screens" and others. In this way a firm makes itself more accessible to receive the business of anyone desiring a particular commodity or service at the time the prospective customer is in a buying mood.

The Classified Telephone Directory is revised and corrected at proper intervals, resulting in the information being kept up to date.

Telephone Directories can be used to cover trade areas of any size within a state, a section of the country or the entire nation, proving to be invaluable for directing the prospective purchaser to the local dealer in any commodity or service.

Veteran Mentor Gives Up
Football Duties To Teach School.

STARKVILLE, Miss., Sept. 17.—(UPI)—C. R. Noble, head football coach and athletic director at Mississippi A. & M. college, today relinquished football coaching duties to devote his entire time to the directorship of athletics and name Christian Cagle (Red) Cagle, famous star of the Army, to succeed him as head coach.

Cagle Noble was connected with the Mississippi A. & M. coaching staff for 11 years as freshman football and varsity baseball coach. Last June he was named head football coach and in July was director of athletic activities. W. D. Chadwick, who held the post for 20 years. He has been serving in this dual capacity, but asked President Critz to permit him to devote his full time to administration, leaving the football coaching to Chris Cagle and Russell Crane who have been assisting him with the coaching school.

Since practice started on Labor Day Cagle and Crane have been doing most of the coaching and Noble thinks they are capable of handling the varsity acceptably, leaving him free to look after other matters.

Loss in Backfield Power Dims Green Wave's
Chances of Repeating—Line
Is Impressive.

Editor's Note: This is one of a series of articles on football prospects at Southern Conference institutions written by Ed Danforth, sports editor of The Constitution, after viewing the squad in practice. Another follows tomorrow.

By Ed Danforth.

Tulane University won the championship of the Southern Conference last year by outscoring Georgia and Georgia Tech on four occasions and taking a brisk gallop through the ranks of other opponents that offered but mild objections.

This year the Green Wave faces the same task as to conference opponents; long term contracts prevented Tulane authorities from taking on a more difficult schedule.

The championship Tulane team had a sturdy rush line formed with Dalrymple and Holland ends; Rucker, McCance, tackles; Bodenier and McCollum guards; and Lloyd Roberts, center. Of this group all have returned except Rucker. In the backfield were Bill Bunker and Ike Armstrong, two flashy ball carriers; Ford Seewis and Jack Pizzano, fullbacks and Dick Baumbach, quarterback. All these have been lost.

From his sophomore squad Coach Bierman has acquired Nollie Felts, a 180 pounder as fullback. The rest of his backfield is made up of the men who substituted for Baumbach, Bunker and Armstrong last year. In to the tackle position last year had been Rucker, Claggett Upton or Calvert De Cologny, substitutes and letter winners last year may be placed.

Thus with a seasoned senior line and an untried backfield, Tulane will go out to attack the same conference schedule; a year ago they had a well balanced eleven. Anyone would hesitate to give the Greenies a robust chance to repeat.

Tulane certainly has been weakened by loss of their scoring power as represented by Bunker, Armstrong and Seewis and the experienced direction of Baumbach.

The new backfield is talented and fast. Hugh Whately, who will play one halfback probably is the fastest man in the conference in a football uniform. Massey, another halfback, is a brilliant defensive man and can pick them up and put them down. So can "Wop" Glover, another halfback candidate. Lowell Dawson, a Wisconsin boy, is being groomed as the new quarterback and his coach is well pleased with his progress.

But none of Tulane's opponents will be afraid of these boys. The mental hazard inspired by Bill Bunker and Ike Armstrong will be missing. And say what you will, that threat carried by a fast back of proven ability often is worth more than an able bodied unknown who actually can out-run the star.

Coach Is Cheerful Pessimist.

Coach Bierman is one of the most pleasantly pessimistic mentors in the entire circuit. It is refreshing to hear him sum up his woes and delineate his troubles. He draws cartoons of his insuperable problems and laughs at his handwriting.

"We have six or eight passers who can throw the prettiest end-over-end passes you ever saw . . . lots of punters, too, who can average 25 yards with wind favoring . . . we have a squad of sixty men, of whom 10 are hopelessly ineligible, and 25 are extras for the mob scenes . . . six or eight of our boys have been hurt and we have not yet had a real hard scrimmage . . . one of them dropped a football on his toe . . . another was refused to go home to vote in the governor's race and he has not come back yet . . . that was five days ago . . . maybe he voted the wrong ticket and got in jail . . . we'll lose the one or maybe four games this year unless a miracle happens as it did last year."

When a football coach is that pessimistic, he cannot be entirely in earnest. Bierman is a modest sort of young man and probably is talking that way to cover his timidity.

Two Intersectional Ventures

While the Green Wave plays no stronger conference schedule than last year—that is to say, only two games with title contenders—two early season games with intersectional opponents make the general program much harder. The Greenies open with Southwestern in New Orleans September 27 and then go to Chicago October 4 to play Northwestern. The difference between Southwestern and Northwestern in national football rankings is approximately the distance from the equator to the Arctic circle.

Then Tulane rides home in time to catch a train for Dallas to play Texas A. & M., always a mean brother. After those two vigorous encounters the Green Wave returns home and plays Birmingham-Southern by way of resting up for Georgia Tech October 25.

The next two games are with Mississippi A. & M. and Auburn and by then the Greenies should be all warmed up for the game with Georgia in New Orleans. They close the season with L. S. U., the old enemy, on Thanksgiving Day.

In playing Southwestern, Northwestern and Birmingham-Southern, the Greenies made a good start at boxing the compass. The schedule might have included Western Reserve, North Carolina and Eastern Kentucky State Normal by way of completing the circuit.

New Orleans Fans Confident

If some are doubtful whether the Green Wave, shorn of its backfield stars and depending on untried cavalry, can take Northwestern, Texas A. & M., Georgia Tech and Georgia to ride, New Orleans fans are not in this class.

A big rail expedition is forming to invade Chicago October 4 for the Northwestern game. Another special train is being organized to go to Dallas. A third expedition is being planned to follow the Greenies to Atlanta October 25 and take Grant Field by storm.

I talked with many of the newspaper and the amateur set and all of them think that regardless of whatever else may happen this year TULANE CAN BEAT GEORGIA TECH.

Fans Dote on Tulane Ends

Tennessee may bow night and morning to its Hug and Brandt; Georgia may salute Maffett and Smith on the streets, but in New Orleans they never even heard of those two pairs of ends.

Jack Holland and Jerry Dalrymple, the Tulane flankmen, are without a doubt the greatest couple that ever boxed a tackle or crated a forward pass in New Orleans' eyes. Indeed, it would take a hair-splitting observer to say that Holland and Dalrymple were to be rated below either the Tennessee or the Georgia pair.

Coach Alexander, of Georgia Tech, thinks Elmer McCance the peer of any tackle in the conference; and McCance is back with added pounds and wisdom to bolster the Green line.

Morris Bodenier is as good as any guard in the field. And this big "Preacher" Roberts, center and captain, was the best conference center last year. There's iron in that rush line that averages close to 190 pounds but none can tell how the backs will perform yet and whether the Greenies will have their old knock of crossing the goal line often.

Tulane, Alabama and Georgia Tech have similar situations: power in the line, an uncertain backfield. Sometimes teams built that way win championships, but not often.

Watch Underslung Guard Step

Fans are told to watch the work of Felts, fullback; John Scafide and John Read, guards, and Don Zimmerman, halfback in the sophomore section. Of these, Scafide is a most impressive character. He weighs 215 pounds, but is no taller than five feet eight. When he drops into charging position he takes up nearly two yards.

Even with a tackle shifted over to the other side, Scafide's wing of the line is still the strong side. He is a good and glowering and, they mean as a mustang. Coach Bierman is counting on this boy as first reserve guard.

Another line reserve is Sam Zemurray registered from Honduras Republic. This is believed to be a press agent stunt of Horace Renegar's. Quiet investigation reveals that Sam lives two blocks from the Tulane stadium. His father owns a banana plantation in Honduras and Sam visited there this summer.

CHICKS DROP OPENING GAME OF SERIES, 4-3

McCabe Has Edge on Beck in Tight Mound Battle, 4-3.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The Fort Worth Panthers, winners of four Dixie series pennants, showed some S644 howling fans how to score three runs on six hits and 10 errors in the first game of the series 4 to 3, from the champion Chicks of the Southern Association, this afternoon. The Chicks took the Texas League standard in the inaugural of the tenth Dixie battle.

Doc Phillips' Chicks, seeking to avenge two previous Dixie pennants won from them by Fort Worth, got everything but runs while the Cats, in the wild eighth, scored three runs on two walks and two errors. The Chicks took a one-run lead in the second, yielded a tie in the third, and then took the lead again in their half of the same inning. 3 to 1. Then came the eighth and gloom for Memphis.

TWO FREE PASSES.

Beck walked Moore and Mallon, first two up. Beck threw Bonowitz, first, out, but when the ball was no third baseman there and Moore and Mallon scored. Then McDaniel, Chick first-baseman, dropped a throw and Bonowitz went first to second, and then across the plate on a sacrifice for Memphis.

GREAT GAME UPSET.

The Chicks went into the series with a virtual 50-50 share of the receipts and the chance of the third Southern association team to win the intersectional title. Birmingham won it last year, the second Southern association club to do so. Mobile beat Fort Worth in 1922. The Chicks won four, while Dallas, Wichita Falls and Houston have divided the other three.

The disaster that stalked the Chicks in the eighth upset a hard-fought ball game in which the advantage had rested with Memphis by a two-run margin. Memphis started in the second. "Big Joe" Hufnemis started with a drive for McCaniel and followed to third on McCaniel's single and was tagged out by Taverne threw Berger at first.

Neither could tally in the next two innings, but in the fifth Fort Worthed the count when Mallon doubled to score O'Connell. The Fort Worth catcher had beat out a grounder and advanced to second on a single by McCaniel.

CHICKS GO AHEAD.

Memphis went ahead in the fifth, scoring two runs on three hits and two errors. McDaniel tripled and scored when McCabe made a wild pitch, Beck at bat with a count of two to one. Beck then passed on to the next two, singles, and went to third on O'Connell's wild throw and scored when Wadley laid down a grounder over Taverne's head.

Neither could tally in the next two innings, but in the fifth Fort Worthed the count when Mallon doubled to score O'Connell at first.

Promoters Hope To Sign Griselle, French Champion, for Strib Here

PA' TO RETURN FOR CONFERENCE LAST OF WEEK

Atlanta Enthusiastic Over Fight—May Be Held in Afternoon.

"Pa" Stribling, who is commuting from Atlanta and his south Georgia plantation, is expected here Friday to attend a conference with R. J. Spiller and L. W. Robert, of the Atlanta Baseball Company.

Telegrams and cables sent to leading heavyweights in effort to land an opening fight for Stribling in the open air fight here at Spiller Field the first week in November will be digested. It is considered possible that Stribling's opponent will be announced after the conference.

The baseball officials are anxious to leave Maurice Griselle, the French champion, who stayed 10 rounds with Stribling, in the United States. It was too tough for Stribling to knock out and too clever a boxer to be hit hard. He is considered a first-class opponent by the Atlanta promoters.

K. O. Christner, Tuffy Griffiths, Babe Hunt, Ernie Schaaf and Art DeKuh also are being considered.

Meanwhile Stribling still is awaiting the fight. Ned Lewis, Chicago promoter, who wanted him to fight Tuffy Griffiths in Chicago October 24. If this fight goes through, it is possible that the Atlanta date will be moved into the second week in November.

Whether the fight will be held in the afternoon or evening is another question that may be settled on Saturday afternoon. The Atlanta baseball magnates are enthusiastic over the prospect of presenting Stribling in Atlanta for the first time since he became the top notch contender for the title. And if they are successful in that venture they expect to bid

Chisox Challenge Cubs for City Title

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—(AP)—After a careful study of the torrid National league race, the lowly White Sox have just about decided to challenge the fading Cubs for the city championship. The Cubs won the last series played in 1928 but whether they will do the same in the event of failure in the current flag race is doubtful because of the condition of their pitching staff.

N. B. A. FLASHES MAILED FIST

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The National Boxing Association moved to gain control of the boxing industry in the United States yesterday by barring boxers "who fight in non-member states from bouts in member states."

This action was taken by the adoption of a resolution as the annual convention came to a close. Stanley M. Isaacs, of Cincinnati, retiring president, presided.

The resolution reads in effect:

"After January 1, any boxer that performs in New York, California, Pennsylvania or Massachusetts (not members of the N. B. A.) will not be used in the N. B. A. states."

It was the consensus among delegations that open warfare would be avoided through those states not now members by the N. B. A. joining hands with the association states.

The organization of a national wrestling association with headquarters in New Orleans also was completed with Colonel Harry J. Hildand, Mississippi, as president.

OLE MISS BUSY ON NEW SYSTEM

Warner Scheme of Play Replaces Rutgers Plan at Oxford.

OXFORD, Miss., Sept. 17.—(AP)—An undoing and making-over process is under way on the gridiron at the University of Mississippi.

After five years of playing the game the Rutgers way, Ole Miss footballers are now learning to do it under Pop Warner's system.

Two of Warner's brilliant students, Edgar Walker and Chuck Smalling, have been brought in as coaches, and it is their intention to bring Mississippi up out of the cellar of Southern Conference football.

If the boys can break down their old game and grasp the new method of tackling, blocking and punting early in the season, Mississippi may show its heels to some of the conference teams.

Fourteen lettermen and 28 of last year's novices, along with men from the freshman ranks, will furnish sufficient material in the point of numbers; but both the line and the backfield feels the loss of veterans who have left school.

The result will be Captain Dick Peters and Carl Payne back at their old positions, and the hefty George Bontell well at center. Tackle teeths are being contested by Potts, Trapp, Bently and Walters, with a promising sophomore in Ed Davis. At guard are found such men as Jones, Bowles and Head.

Soil Brown came back to try for fullback, but the backfield in the main will have to be built with new men. The coaches are having difficulty filling the place at quarterback vacated by Rube Wilcox.

Ole Miss will open its season with a stern gauntlet against Union University, and then will take on some of the strongest teams in the south. A battle with Chicago will furnish their intersectional tilt.

The SPOTLIGHT Grantland Rice

DOWN THE STRETCH.

THE remaining National league schedule, so far as the leaders happen to be concerned, makes an interesting document. Here it is—after Thursday's contests—

Brooklyn—Four games with Pittsburgh, one with New York, one with Philadelphia and two with Boston.

St. Louis—Three with Philadelphia, four with Pittsburgh.

Chicago—Four with Boston, four with Cincinnati.

So far as the strength of the opposition goes, the Cubs have slightly less trouble to face, as far as one can figure out the circumstances on paper. Both the Dodgers and Cardinals have four games left with the Pirates, and the Pirates are more dangerous than the Braves or Reds. At least they should be, since they have better pitching to offer and a rougher attack. All three leaders finish at home, so there is no advantage on that side.

In a race as close as this has been for so many weeks, no one can tell just when the breaking point will come for any club. It might be noticed how often the leader has lost little time in chucking the lead back to some one else. There is a nerve strain in front running the pursuers miss.

The Cardinals unquestionably have been playing the best ball in their league for over six weeks. Whether or not they can keep this fast pace all the way down the stretch through the next 10 days is another guess. They have one of the best all-around teams in baseball and it isn't easy to stampede a team of this general strength which is backed up by such good pitching day after day. And Gabby Street has shown pretty well by now that he knows how to keep a team moving along.

HALLAHAN AND GROVE.

"GROVE and Vance," remarked a member of the Cub team, "are supposed to be the two fastest pitchers in baseball. I think Hallahan, of the Cardinals, is faster than either. He shut out Vance in a 10-inning game and if the Cardinals get into the next series this same Hallahan will give Grove all the battle he wants."

"Last year Connie Mack could save Grove for his finishing pitcher. I don't believe he can save him out this time. He will be needed to start and go all the way and if he meets Hallahan it will be a scrap all the way."

SECTIONAL STRENGTH.

IN THE coming championship at Merion sectional strength will be almost evenly split. The east will have such stars as George Voigt, Ouimet, Perkins, Findlay (Harvard), Homans, Moffett, Guilford and others.

The middle west will have Johnston, Goodman, Von Elm, Lehman, George Dawson and Knepper. The far west will present Moe, Willing, Lawson Little, Fay Coleman, Brown, McHugh, Bon Stein and Seaver. The southern forces will be led again by Bobby Jones.

The strength of the Pacific coast will be especially notable. In this connection the far west can claim half of Von Elm, who divides much of his time between Detroit and Los Angeles. Don Moe will be one of the best men in the field. Doc Willing is always dangerous. Lawson Little, the young golfer who beat Goodman last fall and carried Ouimet to the final green, will bear a lot of watching. He has more experience and now can't be overlooked. Charley Seaver is another long hitter and low scorer from the other coast.

As an average proposition the far west may take the lead in the way of sectional strength. There are eight or nine entries from this section who can play a lot of golf, players who have been improving steadily.

As there will be only 32 to qualify, the scramble here will be one of the hardest ever known in a championship. There are more good golfers now who are able to break 75 than the game has ever known. Out of the field there must be 50 or 60 headed for Merion who ordinarily can count upon a 74 or 75 with possibilities of lower figures. But the strain of qualifying itself tells another story.

SHARKEY AND CAMPOLI.

JACK SHARKEY is now getting ready for his last chance to remain in the heavyweight limelight.

If he can beat Campoli in sensational manner or prove he can control his punches in a decisive victory, he can then split the argument with Young Stribling as to which of the pair may meet Schmeling. Stribling is now in the lead and Sharkey will need one of his best fights to move up on anything approaching even terms. Campoli is no easy test. His weak spot is a long layoff with almost no fighting since last winter. His two matches with Risko are about all the action he has known, outside of one affair that meant nothing.

The skyscraper South American is a fair boxer and a fair puncher. He isn't a world beater, but he is better than the average run of heavyweights. He should be good enough to make Sharkey prove his place.

"JIMMY McLARNIN flooded with challenges." Which shows how much the average mortal is willing to take for the loser's end.

Atlanta Golfers Seek Georgia Open Title in Athens Meet Today

TWO-DAY EVENT
WILL DRAW 100
OF TOP FLIGHT

Pros and Amateurs To Battle Over 72-Hole Route.

A half dozen and probably more Atlanta golfers will leave early today for Athens, Ga., where they will participate today and Friday in the Georgia open golf tournament sponsored by the Athens Country Club.

Julius Hughes, Druid Hills Club champion and former city champion; Sam Caudill, Jr., East Lake star; Larry Hughes, West End; Harry Jones, West End professional and Willis Livingstone, assistant Capital City Country Club pro, are certain to go, and several others had not definitely decided late Wednesday night.

At the time the open golf tournament had been attempted in Athens, plans were discussed early in the summer for such an event to be played over the Capital City course, but due to the city amateur and the numerous club affairs, the idea was abandoned when it was learned that Athens was making preparations to hold the open.

It will be a 72-hole medal affair, 36 holes being played today and the remaining 36 Friday. There will be morning and afternoon rounds each day.

Every golfer in the state is eligible to participate in the open tournament.

Preparations are being made to care for approximately 100 golfers from all over the state. An extensive entertainment program has been planned for tonight.

J. Carter Jackson, former professional at the James L. Key municipal course is pro at the Athens Country Club and will assist in handling details of the tournament.

Ballenger Beats Martin, 1 Up.

Playing an unusually good game, Dr. E. G. Ballenger defeated J. Bowie Martin, 1 up, in the feature match of the first round of the annual Druid Hills Golf Club championship tournament. Dr. Ballenger carded 75.

Bulldog Defense Given First Test

Red Devils Stopped by Varsity as Mehre Scrimmages Georgia's Two Squads.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 17.—Georgia's varsity scrimmaged on defense for the first time this year, and the big boys who will wear Georgia's colors during the coming gridiron campaign looked good as they battered the Red Devil team.

The Red Devil squads that got into the scrimmage with the Reds held the offensive team to within 10 yards of the spot where they re-held the ball at the beginning of the scrimmage.

Bennie Rothstein, All-Southern full-back of other Bulldog teams, who is coaching the Reds this fall, will have to spend a lot of time on his 15 men during the weeks that are coming. The boys on the second squad weren't quite so good as the first, but they had the last few days. Plays that should have been good for yardage were useless today because the 11 men on the Red team couldn't get together on the plays. Which is one reason the varsity held them in check during the afternoon.

There are a number of other reasons why the Reds didn't look good on offense today. Tiger Bennett and Red Maddox, two husky guards, were running with Tex Collings at the center of the line on one defensive team, and the Reds might as well have tried to storm the rock of Gibraltar as to get past the three big boys.

Bobby Rose and Earl Lynn, the two largest men on the Bulldog squad, starred on another team that defended the varsity goal posts against the onslaughts of the Red Devils. Lynn, who started the second at 240, got around surprisingly fast and led off with a homer in the third inning and scored one runner ahead of him in the fifth.

Avriel pounded out his fourth home run of the day in the first inning of the second game, scoring two runs. Peter, who had walked, ahead of him. His string of homers in successive times at bat was stopped at three, however, as he grounded out in his final appearance in the first game.

against the varsity ends. Maxwell, this afternoon, easily looked to be the best player on the Red line.

Jack "The Ripper" Roberts was back in uniform today but didn't stay in the scrimmage for long. Charlie Hardin reported today after being out for more than a week, but was allowed to get in the scrimmage. Homer Keyes and Ed Davis, two other Bulldogs on the sick list, are expected to report within the next three days, while Sullivan will be back sometime next week.

The Bulldogs will hold another scrimmage tomorrow, and this time will play on offense. The Bulldogs will hold another scrimmage tomorrow, and this time will play on offense.

PRUNING KNIFE DESCENDS ON WADE MACHINE

36 Names Left on Varsity Roster as 12 Drop to Reserves.

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The varsity knife descended Monday, lopping off some dozen candidates from the Alabama Crimson Tide roster from which the 1930 eleven will be selected. Thirty-six men were left on the squad under direction of Coach Wallace Wade, while the remainder of the group will be tutored by "Shorty" Propst and will be used for "grass-cutting" purposes.

All 15 lettermen were retained on the varsity roster, which includes also 12 former freshmen and nine substitutes and reserves from last season. The backfield squad from which Coach Wade must elect a starting team and its capable and interchangeable backs includes: Campbell, Holley and Tucker, quarterbacks; Suther, Long, McNight, H. B. Miller, Bellini, Brown, Joyce and Causey, halfbacks; Cain, Boykin and Hansen, fullbacks.

Twenty-two men are in the line, including eight whom being lettermen from previous seasons. This roster is composed of Jimmy Moore, Elmore, Dobbs, Bee Smith, Dothore, Hood and Taylor, ends; Singleton, Clement, Barker, Laslie, Hester, Godfrey, Sanford, Fred Whitworth and Sims, guards; Elbert, Sharpe and Houston, centers.

The men sent to the "grass-cutters" are not necessarily out of it for the season. Some of Alabama's best assets in years past have been players who won valuable opportunities by playing on the reserve eleven, and showing up their varsity betters. The reserves will likely be used to run formations expected to be used by the opposition, as the season progresses.

Several of the veteran backfield men have fallen out of strenuous play due to injuries within the past two days. Leon Long, letter halfback, is still out of uniform following a wrenching knee received late Saturday. He spent the afternoon with hot towels and other treatment.

Offense Polished In Tech Skirmish

Execution of Plays Still Far From Perfect; Hart and Cain Run Well.

By Herb Clark.

Polishing one play at a time and doing that polishing for the most obvious reason in the world—it was sadly needed—Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets stepped through their fourth scrimmage of the year at the Rose Bowl field Wednesday afternoon.

The session showed only one thing which could really be taken as a foundation for the building of plays. Those Jackets are rounding into condition speedily, and are just before being ripe for a strenuous season from that angle.

Plays, however, are another matter. The boys were well off form on several occasions, and comment from the coaching staff drove it up home.

It was the show of a pair of sophomore backs which made the scrimmage itself passable.

Little Jap Hart, taking his turn with the second team in the first part of the session, with the third team on the defensive, showed well. The youngster fought his way inside, over and under tackle or gain after gain and fatted the ball up so that the Jackets, who had counted mainly on their defense to put them across during the season, might yet have an offense.

Hart is a player much like Stumpy Thomason. He is built along chunky lines, not quite so heavy as the "Little Giant," but just about as powerful.

THE GUMPS—YOUR CREDIT IS GOOD

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

INSTALLMENT XXXVI.

Sam arose and went downstairs. In the ballroom, staring with amazement and incredulity at the scene before him, stood Albert Wagner.

Wagner's face was haggard, it was bloodless, new lines had been bitten into it. When Sam spoke to him he started; he mumbled a hoarse apology at intruding. His expression was one of mingled loathing and entreaty as he said:

"I've been looking all over—I've got to see you alone."

"I assume it must be terribly important—or—"

"Alanna's sick. Terribly sick. She—" The speaker's voice failed him; the words stuck in his throat. "She's calling for you."

Sam closed his eyes. Through the blaring of horns, the din of frenzied voices, the scuffling of feet he heard Wagner imploring him. "For God's sake, come with me! It—won't take long. Hurry, please, or—I'm afraid she's—dying."

On this that threatened to give way under him Sam followed the older man down and out into the street. A car was waiting and into this they hurried.

Sam inquired through numb lips, "What has happened? Why does she want to see me? What can I do?"

"She doesn't know she's calling for you. She's delirious. Rest assured we'd never have looked you up if it wasn't necessary!"

"Perhaps you'd better tell me what happened to her."

"She's been hitting herself running wild, for months.

I couldn't do a thing with her. I just—worried. I suppose she wore out, burned up: anyhow, she collapsed, all of a sudden. That was several days ago. I didn't think much of it at first. . . . Oh, it has been getting worse, though. I've been doing anything I can to help her. Don't worry, dear. I heard you calling and I came to you. Alanna! Sam is here."

Her hot fingers closed over his, and pulled weakly at them; her free hand groped in his direction; she uttered a peevish complaint. One of the nurses whispered:

"She wants him to hold her. Put your arm around her, Mr. Lee."

"I'll do that," the doctor agreed.

Sam turned a white, tortured face toward the father, who closed his eyes and nodded. "Your pardon," the young man said.

Alanna's head rolled, she cried out fretfully and lifted her arms and the covers, then whispered:

"Hold her as long as you can, and keep talking to her. It's the first time in 24 hours that her tongue has stopped. Don't let her begin again. It burns out her vitality."

It is doubtful if Sam heard the admonition. Under an instant he had been keeping watch of these strangers in the room and above all of Albert Wagner's presence. Some hand had throttled him. But in the agony of this heartbreak he forgot them all, and Alanna were alone.

Dazedly he asked himself what punishment he deserved that the hand had upon him. Were they utterly implacable? But thoughts of himself were less than momentary; this suffering wisp of a creature in his arms was being tortured, too: she had endured flames hotter than his. Pity dissolved into a poor little scorching tear. "Leave little while you can!" She had faced the fire until it withered her; she drooped now and perished for the dew. She found coolness only in his touch and his tears alone could quench her thirst. . . . Punishment? This was no punishment: it was a reward. Do not he shrink from the devil in torment? His envy man's pain? The compassionate gods had spared him until finally, they had given him his hour. Yes, and they had given him work to do.

Heedless of listening ears he spoke to those that were dead, and some faint echo of his voice had reverberated upon the wretched mind of the sick girl for it paused. She hearkened. Very quietly he doctor and the nurses withdrew; they put their heads together; apprehensively, and yet with growing relief, they looked on.

A nurse met the two men as they entered the Wagner suite; she said, "She's been in a change, she's all right. Or if we could get her to rest, to quit muttering, even for an hour or so. . . . They don't know who you are—the doctor and the nurses, I mean, and I didn't tell 'em—"

"Don't worry: I won't tell them, either. And if we could get her to rest, I'll presume when she recovers. I appreciate your embarrassment and I shall try not to add to it, either tonight or later."

A nurse met the two men as they entered the Wagner suite; she said, "She's been in a change, she's all right. Or if we could get her to rest, to quit muttering, even for an hour or so. . . . They don't know who you are—the doctor and the nurses, I mean, and I didn't tell 'em—"

"So! You let it go as long as you dared."

Oblivious of Sam's words and his tone, Wagner talked on, an occasion of emergency from the father and his heavy breathing. "Tonight's the crisis. The doctor says—"

TARZAN AND THE LOST EMPIRE No. 58

Reporting to his lieutenants and centurions that Nerva was sending a large force to destroy them, Sanguinarius led his army in retreat up the Nilus. A caravan was approaching with women slaves from the east and the Romans set up and captured it. Sanguinarius taking the fairest of the slaves as his wife and riding off with her.

For five years Sanguinarius led his troops and their wives further into Africa until he discovered the hidden canyon, where Castra Sanguinarius now stands. Then an assassin's knife put an end to him as the culmination of a revolution among his followers. The rebels founded the city of Castrum Mare.

Lazy Loquacious Lingerer STEERER SCORES SERIOUS SCHOOLING Lambasts Labor Lessons

BY WILLIAM O. KEY, JR.
While eminent economists are busy theorizing on the causes of unemployment, in deepest Atlanta, the most recent education may be the root of it all. At least, such was the idea gained Wednesday morning on a bench in Piedmont park providing a good perspective of a fast double match on the tennis courts. A robust young man, minus an inferior complex, soon made the bench perspective a joint affair. He was fairly well dressed except for the trousers zone, in which respect it was possible for a human to be born. Gungo Gunz, Din would have stood a better chance with the censors.

After some crisp commentary upon the form of the doubles players he burst into a cigarette and two mafes, and implored into the local employment situation. He was from the place he called Chi, and acted as if he wouldn't mind having a job. One had to agree, too, that jobs hereabouts are scarce, too—remembering the sad condition of his pants—suggested that he might get about five dollars a day picking cotton. The picking belt, he was told, was about 90 miles south at present and—

He snorted.
"I don't pick no rub's cotton," he asserted with emphasis. "I didn't go to high school to learn how to pick no rub's cotton!"

"You went to high school?"
"Sure—sir and all that junk."

"You mean you studied Alger in high school?"

"Alger—the writer—in high school?" It was a bit thick.

"Now, none of them writing guys—alleged the arithmetic racket where X fits anything, see?"

"I had some swell jobs, he went on. Been a steerer for a crap game in a big town he insisted on calling Dee-troit; got a finit for every sucker he steered. (A finit, he said, was $5.) The dumb coppers, though, had Knocked 'em off 'till they had to break up. Then he had worked a wheel in a carnival traveling through Indiana 'till the show went on the rocks. . . .

He was headed for Miami and the dogs. (There were his admittances and we took him at his word.)

At the approach of a motorist in a $3,800 car he got up.
"Here's where I get me a lift," he announced. "Gimme another one of them cigs, mally?" He took two.

And the man who wouldn't pick no rub's cotton was last seen striding toward the driveway as the expensive car came nearer. Hand imperiously up, he was yelling to the motorist:

"Hi, buddy!"
